

21 CARS DESTROYED IN GARAGE FIRE

Today

Two Days Old
Comfort in Bigness.
There Is Improvement
Mr. Baer's Few Words

WE ARE actually in the new year, new two days old. Soon nearly all of us will have forgotten that it is a new year and go along in the usual humdrum way.

A few, with imagination, will say hereafter, "1931 was the beginning of my success." May you be one of them. Success is more difficult, and it is much more pleasant than failure.

Sometimes, when things seem to go wrong, it is a comfort to be reminded that nothing matters very much. If the earth fell toward the sun it would melt like a flake of snow falling on a red-hot stove long before it could reach the sun. And if, in turn, our gigantic sun, a million times as big as the earth, fell toward some of the really big stars in space, it also would melt before it could reach that sun's surface.

PROFESSOR SHAPLEY, with his forehead high and his ears low down the best of management, tells you that Harvard Observatory has found and measured "about 18,000 new galaxies, each an island universe."

An island universe contains millions of stars. One little group, called the "Large Magellanic," has 200,000 stars, every one 150 times brighter than our sun, and 2,000 stars that are 10,000 times as bright as ours.

Under such circumstances, will you please tell us what difference it makes whether Ananias and Sapphira go up or down?

IT SAYS in Ecclesiastes: "A fool also is full of words; a man cannot tell what shall be."

Nevertheless, men of wisdom tell us that better conditions have started already.

Mr. Lamont, secretary of commerce, sees a distinct upturn in business, and also important, the conductor of one of the busiest central railroads of New Jersey trains says: "I know times are getting better. I can see it in the faces of passengers, business men that have traveled with me for years."

NEW YORK newspapers report "A joyous New Year's Eve" with five reports raised.

Mr. Arthur ("Bugs") Baer, philosopher and an absolute teetotaler, expresses humorously the thought of many Americans living under prohibition as follows:

"We're going to start the New Year right by wondering how we got home last night. The last thing I remember was seeing a constabulary of policemen's buttons."

ONE WRITER describes Wall street brokers as celebrating the death of 1930, "with a pensive sadness." A broker "pensively sad" would be worth seeing.

Sad or glad, brokers are advised not to sell their stocks, as they have done recently, far below value. Stock prices may rise and fall, but "one-third of one per cent" goes on forever.

Stots will go above $500,000 each, and in the next really great boom they will go to $1,000,000, in spite of their being watered 40 per cent, in accordance with Wall street custom.

S. PARKER GILBERT, formerly in charge of reparations payments, under the terms of the J. P. Morgan & Co. making 10 members in the firm.

To one interested in business and profits, landing in the J. P. Morgan.

SEARCH MADE FOR SLAYERS OF EIGHT MARINES

Detachments Scour Hills of Nicaragua Following Ambush Attack.

AIR SQUADRON AIDS HUNT

Lieutenant of Rebel Chief Sandino Suspected of Heading Fugitives.

By The Associated Press
MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 2.—United States marine detachments combed the hills near Achuara, northern Nicaragua, today seeking the band of insurgents who Wednesday killed eight of a patrol of 10 marines in an ambush between Ocotal and Apail. The bodies were mutilated.

The search was appalled a newly erected telephone line. The Nicaraguans were believed to be commanded by Miguel Ortiz, a lieutenant of General Augustino Sandino. Two remaining members of the patrol were seriously injured.

The dead: Sergeant Arthur M. Palmer, of Port Lyons, Colo.; Private Irving P. Aron of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Private Lambert Bush of Bay Minette, Ala.; Private Edward Elliott of Des Moines, Ia.; Private Joseph Albert Harbaugh of Washington, Pa.; Private Koster-Adski of Buffalo, N. Y.; Private Richard J. Litz of Indianapolis, Ind.; Private Joseph Arthur McCarthy of Chillicothe, Mo.

The wounded: Frank Austin Jackson of Lawrenceville, Ga.; Mack Hutcherson of Shreveport, La.

Official Account

An account of the ambush given by United States marine headquarters here today said that at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday a marine patrol which was repairing a telephone line was suddenly fired upon from all sides, and that one marine working at the top of a pole was killed in the first volley.

The others immediately put up a defense, which lasted for two and one-half hours. Sergeant Arthur M. Palmer, of Port Lyons, Colo., commanding the patrol, ordered Private Mack Hutcherson to attempt to reach Ocotal and bring help, but in trying to get through the ring of

HARDING MEMORIAL MEETING CALLED

President of Association Sets Monday as Time for Making Dedication Plans.

Trustees of the Harding Memorial association have been asked by President Joseph Frelinghuysen, former U. S. senator from New Jersey, to attend a meeting at the Hotel Hamilton Monday at noon at which time plans for the dedication of the memorial are to be formulated. It was announced today by Hoke Donithen, secretary of the association.

At that time the trustees probably will tender President Herbert Hoover and former President Calvin Coolidge invitations to appear on the dedication program, it was said.

Hoover recently indicated that he would dedicate the memorial this year if invited by the association, and the latter is expected to complete the formalities of inviting the chief executive when the trustees meet Monday.

James F. Prendergast of Marion, vice president, will preside at the session in the absence of Frelinghuysen, who is on a hunting trip in the south.

AIMS FOR PEACE

Mussolini Asserts Italy Not Interested in War in Radio Speech.

By International News Service
ROME, Jan. 2.—Peace and prosperity instead of war was advanced by Premier Mussolini as Italy's chief aim in world affairs in a radio address broadcast to the United States New Year's day.

He spoke in English. Direct references to Italian military affairs and criticism who charged him with engaging in "sword rattling" were lacking, but he dwelled emphatically upon his aversion for another war.

TO BOOST HOURS

Firestone Company Expected To Increase Working Time

By The Associated Press
AKRON, O., Jan. 2.—Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. officials today announced that factory working hours will be increased starting Monday. While officials declined to reveal just what the working day will be, it was understood from reliable sources that the increase in working hours will be approximately 20 per cent. Goodyear on Monday replaces the six hour four day week with the eight hour five day week as previously announced.

MAN KIDNAPED, ROBBED HERE

Three Strangers Take Tom Stansberry of Upper Sandusky for "Ride."

PICKED UP AT STATION

Tells Story to Sheriff; Collapses at House on Garden City Pike.

Taken for a "ride" by three strangers, Tom Stansberry, 35, of Upper Sandusky, last night was slugged and robbed by his abductors, he told Sheriff John J. Francis and Deputy Sheriff Fred Williams when they arrested him on the Garden City pike.

Stansberry at first was thought to be intoxicated, but Sheriff Francis said today he believed the Upper Sandusky man to have been doped by his captors and that he would release him today since his story appears to be true.

A Search Made of Stansberry

A search made of Stansberry revealed an empty wallet which the man claimed contained approximately $40 before he left on the "ride."

The man was suffering last night from a cut across the face, which Francis said he believed was caused when the robbers pushed him out of their machine.

Stansberry was taken into custody in a house on the Garden City pike where he stumbled and fell as the occupant answered his knock.

Discovery of a Railroad Ticket

Discovery of a railroad ticket to Upper Sandusky among the man's effects corroborate his story that the men who robbed him picked him up at the Union station where he was awaiting a train home.

SERUM INJECTIONS KEEP JOFFRE ALIVE

Military Leader Now in Deep Coma Likely To Continue Until Death.

By The Associated Press
PARIS, Jan. 2.—Marshal Joffre, deep in a coma from which his physicians did not expect him to awake, remained alive today, one of them indicated, through injections of serum.

Dr. Boulin, meeting newspapermen outside the hospital of St. Jean de Dieu, said:

"The final coma which will take the marshal can be foreseen from a half hour to three-quarters of an hour in advance by acceleration of the pulse, which has been 140 since yesterday."

"The patient remains unconscious. Heavy doses of a serum are being injected which should permit the marshal to pass today and perhaps tonight."

At 11 a. m. yesterday the old soldier, whose 79th birthday is only a few days away, lapsed into a deep unconsciousness which was described by those present as much more like sleep than the apparently final stage of an illness which the marshal has fought with all the obstinacy of his being. Since then he lay perfectly still.

Three hours later the marshal was still unconscious and Colonel Des Mazes said he was breathing very slowly.

REBELS SEIZE RULE IN PANAMA, HOLD PRESIDENT PRISONER

Nine Reported Killed, Including U. S. Newspaper Man; Arias Proclaimed Head; President Hands in Resignation.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press
PANAMA CITY, Jan. 2.—President Arias, overthrown in a sudden revolt this morning, this afternoon named Harmodio Arias premier, then resigned as president, leaving Arias at liberty to form a new cabinet.

Hartwell Ayers, American newspaper man, died at noon of wounds received in the revolt outbreak.

By United Press

PANAMA CITY, Jan. 2.—Revolutionaries seized the capital today and proclaimed a provisional government headed by Dr. Harmodio Arias, a 44-year-old lawyer.

There was a brief conflict, marked by heavy machine gun and rifle fire. Insurgent leaders said eight men had been killed and an undetermined number, including an American newspaper correspondent, wounded.

President Harmodio Arias, a Liberal party leader who took office on Oct. 1, 1928, for four years, was taken prisoner by revolutionaries, who slipped into the presidential palace from the balcony of the adjoining house and descended on the loyal police guards from the rear.

The rebels met Arias in the second floor, taking him prisoner and holding him under guard in the palace.

A truckload of United States soldiers arrived from the canal zone to protect the American legation.

American Minister Roy L. Davis conferred with Arias, who was proclaimed head of the provisional government. Arias is not a member of any political faction.

Military police guarded the palace outside and civilian guards occupied the debris-littered and, in some places, blood-stained interior. Wild shots damaged the residential palace.

The movement against the Arias regime was carried out rapidly during the night by youthful insurgents, many of whom did not even know how to handle their rifles.

General Preston Brown of the United States army was at the American legation, but no troops except military police were on duty in the city. The capital was quiet and stores were being opened, but border guards prevented the departure of Americans from the Canal Zone to Panama City.

KIDNAPED BOY RETURNS HOME

Father's Attorney Says No Money Changed Hands in Transaction.

BULLETIN

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 2.—Charles Y. Abernathy, 28-year-old Negro and son of Pearl Abernathy, Negro real estate dealer here, was the kidnaper of Adolphus Busch Orthwein, 18-year-old grandson of August A. Busch, president of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., and great-grandson of Adolphus Busch, late millionaire brewer, Harry Troll, attorney for the family, disclosed today.

By The Associated Press
ST. LOUIS, Jan. 2.—Details of how the release of 18-year-old Adolphus Busch Orthwein was effected late yesterday, 20 hours after he had been kidnapped by an armed Negro, remained undivulged today.

The boy, grandson of August A. Busch, president of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., and great-grandson of Adolphus Busch, late multi-millionaire brewer, was found on a road in St. Louis county after the Orthwein family finally received a telephone call saying he was safe.

No ransom paid.

Harry Troll, attorney for the boy's father, Percy J. Orthwein, executive of an advertising agency, said "not a cent changed hands," but added the Busch family would stand by an agreement made by Orthwein shortly after the abduction to reward generously any informant who furnished information leading to the return of Adolphus "and that absolutely no questions would be asked."

The transaction to get back the child Troll said, "came through a connection made 30 years ago," but he refused to say what the connection was.

"At about noon New Year's day, Mr. Orthwein received a telephone call from a man who told him the child was safe," Troll, who acted

TO FLOOD LAKE AT PARK HERE TO AID SKATERS

McKinley Lake in McKinley park late this afternoon and tonight will be flooded to improve skating. Dr. F. R. Mann, chairman of the park board, announced today.

Half a million gallons of water, donated by the Marion Water Co., will be poured over the icy surface of the lake, which has been too rough for skating. The work will be done by the service department, in charge of Director D. J. Harlow.

Children are asked to stay off the lake until the water used in flooding is solidly frozen. A notice will be posted at the lake when skating will be permitted, Dr. Mann said.

The half million gallons of water will flood the lake to a depth of four inches.

RESERVE BANK REPORT SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

December Survey Lists Business Developments Best in Many Months.

AUTO INDUSTRY LEADS

Production Above 1929 Record for First Time Within Year.

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 2.—This month's survey of business conditions by the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland looks the best in many months. The survey covers Ohio, West Virginia, Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Kentucky.

On the surface, the survey, released today, shows conditions are "quite depressed," but under such are revealed highly important factors, beginning or making ready for a strong upturn.

The outstanding example of this situation is the automotive industry, which, particularly in this district, is an accurate barometer of business. Automobile production in the entire last half of 1930 was the lowest in several years, but during this period the public has been buying cars much faster than the factories have been producing them.

Latest registration figures cover October and show that 160,219 new cars were sold in the United States that month while the factories were producing only 112,300 and part of these were for foreign export.

First Increase Over 1929

The result is that automobile production, for the first time in a year, was greater in December than the corresponding month of 1929. Further, dealer and factory stocks are low, the used car stocks are lower than a year ago, and the annual automobile shows are at hand this month, all of which are favorable for continuation and increasing speed of factory improvement.

In many other lines, buying by consumers has exceeded factory production, and made a situation similar to that in automobiles.

Other constructive factors include continued increase of savings deposits, substantial Christmas shopping, improved construction activity, pickup in automobile tire and accessory factories and the strong cash position of banks.

The bank's report of the year-end survey was plain-spoken, however, with evidence that 1930 in itself was a very depressing year.

Depression Reviewed

The world-wide depression begun in the summer of 1929 and which reached major proportions by the spring of 1930, the survey found.

CAPITAL AUTHORITIES BAFFLED IN MURDER

Police Release Score of Persons After Questioning Reveals Nothing.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Why pretty Beulah Limerick was shot to death and by whom, still baffled police today, two days after an underdog accidentally discovered a hidden bullet hole at the back of her head.

Authorities released a score of persons questioned since the girl was found dead Wednesday but they held her brother, Vernon Limerick, Richard Reed, who lived at her house, and Edward Paddy, who had been her escort at a dance Tuesday night.

A "jealous suitor" perhaps killed her, police thought.

The story of the three men, as police told it, was that Paddy brought the girl home from the dance early Wednesday morning. Vernon Limerick came down from his third floor room and talked with them awhile. Reed was asleep then but rose about a quarter to 5, went down as was his custom to light a fire in Beulah's room. She lay on her side, the covers over her head, he said, and he did not disturb her. Soon he left for his work at a filling station.

Vernon said he got up at 8:30 and called to his sister. Receiving no answer he went down to her room. She was flat on her back, the covers drawn back to her waist. He could not rouse her and went for aid.

An interne came and pronounced her dead from hemorrhage. A routine death certificate was issued. Late that evening the undertaker discovered the bullet hole.

STEAL $40, MISS $400.

By The Associated Press
WARREN, O., Jan. 2.—Robbers stole a safe from the Wollam Insurance company office at Cortland, carried it ten miles and took $40 from it. They overlooked $400 in another drawer.

Exonerated

Dr. Carl A. Hincley, well known Chicago dentist, whom a coroner's jury cleared of any suspicion that he had put his crippled 11-year-old son to death to end the youth's lifelong misery. With the dead boy in his arms, the dentist was found Saturday in a gas-filled room of the family home. A pulmonary squad revived the father, but failed to resuscitate the son, while the father insisted that he had died earlier of a heart attack. The dentist decided to end his own life when he was unable to revive his son following the heart attack.

TRAIN CRASH KILLS THREE

Convoy High School Trio Victims of Tragedy; Former Legislator Killed.

By United Press
Traffic accidents, fire, liquor and guns combined in claiming heavy toll of dead and injured in Ohio New Year's eve and New Year's day, a United Press survey today showed.

The major tragedy occurred near Convey where three Convey High school students were killed when their automobile was struck by a Pennsylvania freight train. The victims are Morris Krelacher, 17; Bill Burley, 17, and Ward McDaniels, 17. The youths were returning from a party when the accident occurred.

At Cincinnati Charles Di Virgilio shot and killed his divorced wife, Josephine, 38, because she was associating with another man. He was arrested and charged with murder. The shooting occurred in the auditorium of the Metropolitan theater.

Doris Peterson, 4, Cincinnati, was killed when her father's automobile collided with another machine. The child's neck was broken.

TAG SALE PICKS UP

Demand for License Plates Shows Increase Here.

After a pre-New Year's slump, the sale of 1931 automobile tags is picking up in Marion county, according to Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, secretary of the Marion Auto club, which issues licenses locally.

Last week the sale was 2,500 lower than for a corresponding period a year ago, but sales this week have increased sufficiently to take up part of that margin, she said.

The sale is still considerably lower than last year but the new year already begun owners are expected to procure their tags soon in order to be able to drive their machines.

Got Results

(Will Rogers Special)
BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Jan. 2.—I believe my Christmas wish of not having our big men "predict" on New Year's did some good anyhow. Got a lovely wire from Charley Schwab, and we are gratified to find his "prediction" missing this morning.

Of course, some of 'em you can't stop. J. P. Stoen will be "predicting" as long as his limousine lasts. Tom Lamont "predicted" for J. P. Morgan (not a difficult guy to predict for). Morrow wisely said nothing.

If we could have eaten, and digested "optimistic predictions" during 1930 we would have been the fattest nation on earth.

LOSS TO REACH $7,500; CAUSE IS MYSTERY

Elsey Motor Car Co. Building on Essex Court Razed in Early Morning Blaze.

FIREMEN BATTLE 2 HOURS

Numerous Other Fires Reported from Other Sections Over Holidays.

Twenty-one used automobiles were destroyed when fire of undetermined origin swept the garage of the Elsey Motor Co. at 208 Essex court early today. Fire damage was estimated at $7,500 by Fire Chief T. J. McFarland.

Firemen of company No. 1 fought the flames two hours, beginning at 2:35 a. m. Two lines of hose were laid, as firemen sought to control the fire from both ends of the concrete block structure.

Flames Gained Headway

The fire apparently originated in the west end of the one-story building, 40 by 60 feet in dimensions. The flames had gained considerable headway before the fire was discovered by Mrs. Catherine Zachman, residing near the garage.

The roof and doors at both ends of the garage, and all the contents were destroyed. All but two of the 21 automobiles belonged to M. A. Elsey, owner of the garage.

How the fire originated is a mystery. There was no fire in a stove located in the garage at any time yesterday. Elsey's sons say. The only automobile in the building which was used yesterday was a Ford tudor which was parked inside the garage yesterday afternoon.

The garage will be rebuilt, Elsey stated today. The loss is only partially covered by insurance. Elsey said his policies probably would net him between $1,800 and $2,000 insurance on the total loss.

In East End

Essex court, on which the garage is located, is a short distance south of East Church street between Hane avenue and Summit street.

The fire was one of three which disturbed the peace of city firemen yesterday and this morning. An attempt yesterday afternoon to thaw frozen water pipes between a cistern and a house resulted in fire at the Thomas Cowan residence at 248 Reed street.

The small bonfire built under the pipe set fire to the house. The blaze was extinguished after $5 damage had been done.

Sparks from a chimney falling on a shingle roof resulted in fire at

MERGER PRINCIPALS REQUEST NEW TRIAL

Youngstown Steel Leaders Renew Legal Fight After Long Conference.

By The Associated Press
YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 2.—A motion for a new trial was filed in common pleas court here today by counsel for Bethlehem Steel corporation and the Youngstown sheet & tube company whose merger was enjoined Monday by Judge David G. Jenkins.

The action followed a five-hour conference held Wednesday in New York, by Eugene G. Grace, Bethlehem president; James A. Campbell, Youngstown chairman; Frank Purnell, president of Youngstown, and counsel for both companies.

The decision to file the motion had been kept secret, principals saying only an hour before it was filed that the action was decided on at the New York meeting.

"This is purely a matter of mechanics," said Newton D. Baker, chief of defense counsel. "There are two days of carrying a case up by error, or by appeal. This is the first step in carrying it up by error."

Asked whether the motion was to be taken as an indication that the case would be carried up on error, Mr. Baker said: "It means nothing; it is simply a mechanical move."

The motion says that Judge Jenkins' decision was "contrary to the law and against the weight of evidence." "Errors of law occurring in the trial" also are charged.

Pottery Heads Predict Business Improvement

By The Associated Press
EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Jan. 2.—Better conditions in the ceramic industry are forecast for the first half of 1931. George C. Thompson, president of the C. C. Thompson Pottery company, predicted conditions during the next six months will be at least 75 per cent of normal.

Joseph M. Wells, chairman of the labor committee of the United States Pottery Association and general manager of the American Laughlin China company, said other leaders also had their eyes turned to improvement.

"SUN-RIPENED BERRIES"

Read the Story of Neva von Norstrand of North Shore

"As most girls did on Minnesota farms, I made coffee as a small child; I learned coffee was important," writes the lovely Neva von Norstrand. "And today I almost invariably choose the coffee and taste it before it is served at any of our North Shore dinners. Golden Sun Coffee is the coffee we like best."

There are hundreds of varieties of coffee berries. There are eight grades in this country—the light, cinnamon, medium, high, city, full city, French and Italian. But that which makes coffee that particularly, distinctive, delicious flavor is the mellow, rich maturity of the berries.

Golden Sun Coffee is the choice sun ripened berries. The rare sunshine in the upper tropic highlands gradually absorbs the moisture. The fragrant, aromatic oils are locked in the berries. Roasted, blended and ground Golden Sun Coffee makes a marvelous cup, pure, modestly stimulating, delicious.

Golden Sun Coffee is constantly fresh. In many cities Golden Sun Coffee outsells all others. Golden Sun Coffee is economical. The price is moderate. There's a divided coupon, too. Look for it in the Golden Sun Coffee can.

Be sure to ask at Independent Grocery Stores. Order today for Sunday morning breakfast.

"Heart of a Wife"

—BY ADELE GARRISON—

THE promise of a successful marriage is the things which I, Marion, have received in the last two months, which constitute the problem I ever have had to face. Can I do it? Must I turn over my baby and my young life to one else, or must I wait forever, to dream of a better life—that of being a successful wife—which, in these days, has seemed to be the only goal.

If I am able to summon the courage and the executive ability to make a motherhood and a career, I have any time left to my husband, brilliant, successful, yet so temperamental, he is not unlike "Peter Pan" and often needs more mothering and humoring than most small children.

The questions hover over me like dark clouds. But there is never a cloud in the blue sky above me where the glowing stars seem traveling swiftly toward the western horizon. It has been a perfect summer day, its heat tempered by the breezes, which rarely fall on eastern Long Island, and I am resentful toward the questioning thoughts which will not let me alone, and so spoil the perfect day.

For it has been a wonderful day in my life as well as in weather conditions. My baby daughter is as beautiful today, and lies peacefully among the cushions of her carriage, relieved only by the pink satin bows with which all mothers delight in decking the appointments of their girl babies. And, at my minute now, my small son, who has not yet seen her, will come home I have not seen him since the early summer, and only a mother, who has been separated that long from an idolized child, can understand the tremulous happiness with which I am awaiting his arrival.

MOTHERHOOD OR CAREER?

In "Heart of a Wife," the first installment of which appears on this page today, Adele Garrison is beginning the twelfth phase of "Revelations of a Wife," proclaimed the longest and most widely read serial novel ever written. Millions of readers have followed, through the years, the fortunes of beautiful and brilliant Madge Graham and her handsome, temperamental husband, Dicky. In the newest phase of this stirring serial of married life Madge Graham faces a problem which today is paramount in the lives of many a married couple—Can a Wife Reconcile Motherhood and a Career?

Start today and follow the marital fortunes of lovable Madge and her "Peter Pan"—Dicky.

but Ronald, the "roomie's" brother, whose devotion to Marion is so patent to everybody, and so secretly irritating to Lillian. She never has been able to conquer, wholly, her first unreasonable resentment against the manly, lovable youth, although I think she sincerely likes him, and prefers him to any other possible suitor for her idolized child's affections.

"I want more hills than Helena has, anyway," she said "and we've found something that's a pretty fair imitation of mountains. Of course, they're not the Catskills but—"

A Memory of Phil Veritien. She stopped abruptly, and I well knew the reason. Not for years, I guessed, could she bear to go back to the Catskills, where Robert Savarin, famous artist, had lived and loved her so royally, and in the later years so hopelessly. I knew that Lillian's love for her husband was beautiful and complete, but I also knew that she never could forget the pitiful scene of last Christmas time, when dying Robert Savarin had taken his last farewell of her, secretly leaving her a handsome legacy in my name.

I had hastened to my relief at her generous plan for the two restless small boys.

It is so peaceful upon this terrace with my favorite vista of fields, meadow, and woodland dipping down, down, to the distant ocean, that even the problems left unsolved from the Christmas season seem of minor importance, though they creep through my mind, furtively as if ashamed of being in evidence at all upon this wonderful day.

Jack Leslie—no sign of the presence of the cabaret dancer, so determined in his enmity to Noel and Mary, has not to us since the time of the attack he initiated upon Noel.

"You can't tell me," Lillian had muttered only a few days before she left for the Connecticut hills, "that Phil Veritien doesn't know where the 'capering cockroach' is. Well, there's one comfort. It's little more than a nuisance to keep Leslie out in black, unless he keeps inside the door on the left which will keep him quiet. Of course, Harry had him. Had, but you can't very well go to the great theatrical producer of the day, and say: 'See here, you this and that, we're shouting suit you hired Leslie to get Mary into some discreditible scrape, but didn't anticipate his attack on Noel.' But that's one of the little items that worked in your favor when you fought the battle of the century with Phil."

I shivered now, despite the heat, as I had done at her reminder of that Christmas night when I had pleaded the cause of my employer's son and Dicky's gifted niece, and he had suddenly capitulated, given Noel the paternity which the boy's mother had left in his care, and restored Mary to her position as a potential Veritien star.

But I had no need to shiver now at any memory of Philip Veritien. I reminded myself. Whatever Lillian had said to him, and I guessed that he had said much, his attitude gave since that night had been impeccable. His resignation from his employment, had accepted from him Lillian, had sent word to me that he still held the opinion that I "would write a play, and a good one," and asked to have first chance at it when I should have finished it.

Phantom Problems. Such an opinion from so great an authority had made even Dicky a compliant toward the heady, delightful task which had occupied my time since Christmas. With the duplicate of Philip Veritien's famous miniature theater before me I had worked over a play, the idea of which had been with me for many years. I had completed the first two acts in the late Spring and sent them through Lillian to my former employer—who I had not seen since that fateful Christmas night—and he had been really ecstatic over them. But when I should write the other two acts and send them, just now my heart and soul were too much absorbed in the little of humanity sleeping beside me to think of anything else. Later, I knew, subconsciously, I should have to reckon with Edith Fairweather's enmity, born of her love for Dicky.

My uneasiness over Marion's confidences to her "roomie" over the mysterious box with its secret compartment entrusted to her by her dying grandmother, was also dormant, but not dead, for it was a constant danger in my eyes, because of my mistrust of Carolyn Brixton's stepfather, Samuel Brixton, and of his half-brother, Charles Owen, whom I suspected of some plot against the problematical inheritance of the young daughter of Samuel Brixton's dead business partner.

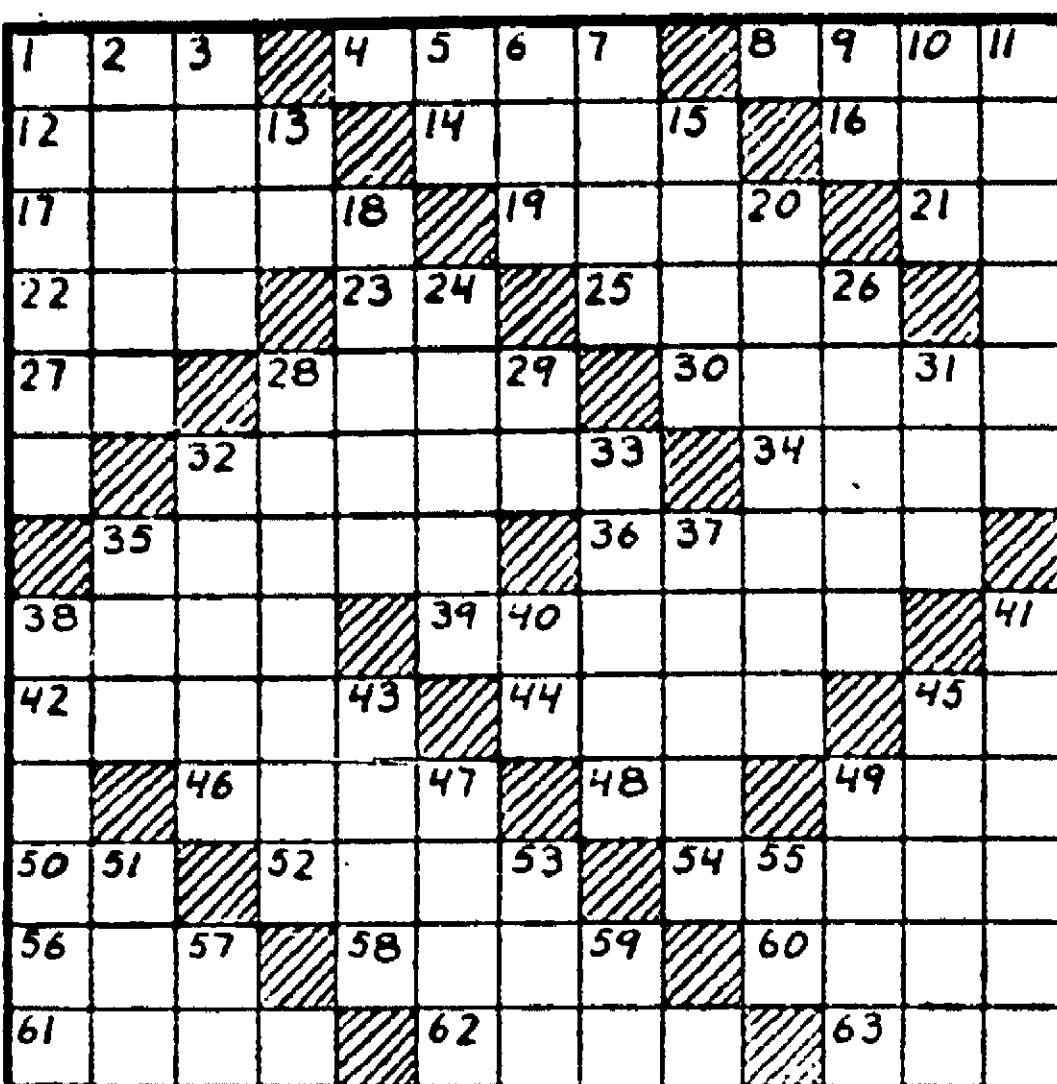

Later on, I realized fearfully, the question of Katherine Bricket's leaving me would have to be faced. I could not expect my little kinwoman to spend the rest of her life in taking care of my children, leaving me free to pursue whatever career I chose. I knew that she had received but one son from her husband, my brother-cousin, now in the wilds of South Africa, during the year just past, and that constantly with her was the shadow of the woman, the sister of one of Jack's associates, who was sharing that adventurous expedition. But her letters from Hal Meredith, famous alienist, sweetheart of her first youth and faithful, waiting adorer, were steadily increasing in frequency, and I guessed in disturbance of her peace of mind.

And Hugh—Hugh Grantland, the most steadfast friend I ever had known, from whom no one had heard since his sudden and mysterious disappearance into China—I know that not forever can I put aside my anxiety and my grief for him. But today there is room for nothing in my heart but joy over the well-being of my baby girl, and the imminent return of my idolized small son, tinged with the mother's eternal question: What will be his reaction to the new baby?

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

—BY JUDD M. LEWIS—

IT WAS cold again this morning which was Friday. But I wasn't surprised. It is almost always cold in the winter. Jubilee wasn't surprised either, but he don't like winter much when it is time to be let down from a warm bed out of the window into a cold world. I don't blame him. He has more flees in the winter than he does in the summer, and they stick tighter to him. If he was a Mexican dog he wouldn't have any hair, for the fleas to hide in, but he would freeze to death, and that wouldn't be any fun. I bet he would rather have fleas than to be dead, but he don't know he would. A dog hasn't got anything to think with.

Nibs didn't show up this morning. So we all went over to see how come, and there wasn't anything the matter. Mr. Wagmore sent his grandfather and grandmother a turkey Christmas and another one New Years, and Nibs gets two-bills a day for milking Old Man Scanlan's cow, and they have got enough coal to burn all winter, so their old house is warm and he says he likes to stay home once in a while. He got some books for Christmas from Mr. Wagmore, and he was looking at them. We hoored him and told him books was for girls and he was getting to be a sissy. So his grandmother made him put his coat on and pushed him out the door. He said he had a good mind to bust someone, and he was standing on the steps and we were all standing around hooring him, and I told him the only ones he could bust would be Sandy or Hopper, who is our crib, and I said I wouldn't let him bust them, so he said maybe he would bust me. I told him to fly to it, because I hadn't been busted this year, and then he grinned and we all lit out for my barn, where we keep our sleds and skates and got them and went down to the hill, and made a fire and slid till noon, and then we went up to my house and my mother said for us to come in and finish up the turkey.

There was a drift in our yard so we went up there and made a snow house and sprinkled it so it would freeze, and we got some old boards

Masked Longing

SYNOPSIS

A star part in Max Klein's new Broadway show, "Sara's Christmas Stockings," is won for Allen Gray, actress, by her press agent friend, Jimmy Crane. Allen stifles her love for Jimmy, feeling her first duty is to Vivienne, her dashing younger sister, who is posing for Dwight Channing, a wealthy artist painting murals for a new theater. Channing has promised Vivienne he will be responsible for a borrowed dress that is ruined while she is wearing it. A story attacking by implication the reputation of both sisters, appears in a gossip sheet. Vivienne takes it lightly, believing Allen's worry over the matter. The show opens, Allen is a success, and she leaves for the party Channing is giving at his studio in her honor.

CHAPTER 10

A SHOUT went up from the guests as Allen entered. The musicians struck up the song that she had put over two hours before. "To Miss Santa Claus," Channing proposed, and they all drained their glasses.

Allen's feet were wined as she and Channing danced the new "Christmas Stomping Waltz." "It's too good of you to do all this—just for me," she thanked him.

"Who wouldn't be host to you tonight?" He smiled down at her. "Besides, I think I owe you something. You haven't liked me very much."

"Oh, why?" She drew back. "Have I made you think so?"

"I've thought perhaps that you didn't quite—like Vivienne's coming here."

"Please," she flushed. "Not to-night. I'm so completely happy. Besides, I guess I have been a trifle antiquated."

"You?" He laughed. "You look like a child."

"Maybe that's the reason. I'm too young to have any judgment. Now do take me out to your garden. I want to look up at the stars in the sky. Just to see if they're still there."

But the theatrical critics refused to let their new discovery slip away.

"Now you may vamp me as hard as you like," Garland Woodward whispered. He slipped his arm about her waist and they vainly tried to squeeze themselves into the dancing throng. "I didn't dare come near you till I'd turned in my copy. This floor's worse than the subway! Let's go and have a drink."

Allen walked with him to the bar that had been installed in the adjoining room. Jimmy was there with the rest of the newspapermen who had come in with him. In the center of the group Vivienne was standing.

"Here's the queen in person!" Jimmy announced.

"Well, here's to Allen, Queen of Scots!" Bruce Burns saluted her. "Buck, down some ice-creams for the lady in a hurry."

"Thanks, no," Allen declined. "You take care of it for me."

"Sorry, lady, no can do," Burns sighed regretfully. "Here, Princess, you punish this." He passed the high-ball to Vivienne. "Listen, Princess," he edged closer. "What do you do every day, except look ornamental?"

"Nothing," said Vivienne, impulsively. "Being ornamental's my job."

"Rather a sneaky, eh?" Burns smiled. "You're not on the stage, or I'd know it."

"I'm an inspiration—to artists—a model," she confessed.

At that moment Max Klein appeared and drew Allen aside.

Ohio Boy Amazes Mother

"Marion's stomach was often upset and she suffered a lot with headaches," says Mrs. F. Meadline, 7031 Zoeter Ave., Cleveland. "He was feverish and his breath was bad. I found he was constipated."

"A friend told me about California Fig Syrup, so I got some for Marion. It surely surprised me to see how quickly it stopped his feverishness, cleared his breath and tongue, regulated his bowels; made him a strong and energetic boy again."

"The quick, safe way to cleanse and regulate the bowels of bilious, headachy, constipated children is with California Fig Syrup. Give it at the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness or feverishness. Every child loves its rich, fruity flavor and it acts without griping or discomfort. Appetite is increased by its use; digestion is assisted; weak stomachs and bowels are given tone and strength."

For fifty years, doctors have endorsed this pure vegetable product. The genuine is always marked by the word California. Look for that when buying or you may get an imitation.

COMPENSATION CASE APPEALED TO COURT

Attorney General Files Transcripts with Club Through Prosecutor.

Transcripts of two cases in which the state industrial commission disallowed claims for workmen's compensation today were filed in common pleas court by Attorney General Gilbert Bettman through Prosecuting Attorney Alfred Donihue.

Filing of the transcripts is a procedure which opens up the way for the claimants to have their petitions heard in common pleas court.

The claimants are Webster Bushong, who alleges he received a broken leg while an employee of the Pollak Steel Co., and Hazel Haynes, widow of Arnold Haynes, who allegedly died from the effects of inhaling muriatic acid fumes while employed by the La Rue Construction Co.

In each case the state commission disallowed the claim because it ruled the claimant did not sustain the injury in the course of employment and arising out of his employment.

The Toledo, Fortuna & Findlay Railway Co. against Mary Bell Owens, administratrix of the estate of John D. Owens, and Clifford Owens.

In the plaintiffs' petition, the defendants are charged with breaking a contract for the purchase of electric power at a stone quarry owned by the defendant and Clifford Owens at Rising Sun, O.

AUXILIARY MEETS

Mrs. Morcraft Hostess to Mail Association.

Mrs. Watson Moncraft was hostess to members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of the Railway Mail association last night at her home on Edgewood drive.

The meeting was a postponed December session and instead of holding the annual Christmas exchange the members contributed fruit to be distributed to needy families. During the business session Mrs. J. U. Riser was appointed program supervisor succeeding Miss Catherine Kraft. Mrs. Fred Johnson was named press agent, succeeding Mrs. L. M. Kraft. Mrs. Kraft and her daughter have moved to Gallion.

A social hour and bridge were enjoyed in rooms decorated in keeping with the holiday season. Guests included Miss Stonebraker of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Sara Case of Decatur, Ind. The members will be entertained at the January meeting at the home of Mrs. John Luvist of Hane avenue.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The picture which has been the most talked about in 1930, "Diarrh," ranked first in the list of the best pictures of the year, according to the poll of the nation's critics. The picture, a comedy, was directed by Lewis Milestone. It was the only picture in the list to have a running time of less than an hour. The picture was praised for its cleverness and its cleverness was praised for its cleverness.

which continued to the advantage of the general moving picture public and the disadvantage of the legitimate theater. However, a number of actors and actresses made appearances in plays on Broadway in between pictures.

There were other indications that the screen and the stage were getting closer together and the day may not be far distant when the screen may serve in an extremely more far-reaching fashion. The place once occupied by the theater, the screen will take over.

Against this viewpoint exists the school which believes the screen has gone in too much for adoption of plays and urges more original moving pictures.

Salaries Stabilized

The influx of stage stars into the film industry appears paradoxical, but it has been reduced, or shall we say stabilized, salaries.

Another tendency appears to be again building up these new stars from Broadway, and instead, permitting the quality of the story to work for the financial success of the picture. However, there are certain companies and certain stars still relying on the "rally" made photograph—having the story constructed around their individual personalities.

The industry has gone on record for ethics in a big way. The Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, presided over by Will Hays, announced a code of good taste, subscribed to by practically every large film company.

The Advertising and Publicity Departments of the leading motion picture concerns followed with a code of advertising ethics.

This code included:

No false or misleading statements shall be used, no text or illustrations shall include profanity and vulgarity shall be avoided, and with malicious purpose shall not be used.

Outstanding Pictures

Perhaps it would be easier to pick the ten best picture shows out of a hundred than to pick the ten outstanding moving pictures for 1930.

"Diarrh" with George Arliss. "The Big House" with Chester Morris and Wallace Berry. "All Quiet on the Western Front" directed by Lewis Milestone.

"The Blue Angel" with Marlene Dietrich and Emil Jannings. "The Man From Blackhawk" with John Barrymore. "Anna Christie" with Greta Garbo and Marie Dressler. "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" with Fredric March. "Dagobert" with Bertie Maude. "Dagobert" with Bertie Maude. "Dagobert" with Bertie Maude.

plays on Broadway. Only two of them can be called as spectacular films—"All Quiet on the Western Front" and "The Big House." The others stand forth for the acting ability of their principals, their subject matter and the way in which they were directed.

George Arliss stood shoulders above the machine field for his clever and polished acting of the character in "Diarrh."

N. C. O. LEAGUE OPENS CAGE TITLE RACE

HARDING ENTERTAINS MANSFIELD TYGERS; SHELBY AT GALION

Bucyrus Host of Ashland in Final Game of Opening Trio.

A trio of hard fought battles are in prospect tonight as the half dozen basketball teams of the North Central Ohio Athletic League swing into action to open the quest for the 1931 championship of the circuit. Shelby High school is present holder of the league title and is a favorite to come through for the second bunting in a row this season.

Three games are carded for tonight, to be played in Marion, Gallion and Ashland. The setto here between the arch rivals, Mansfield and Harding, will probably attract the attention of the major share of local fans, even though it does not figure to be the best battle of the three contests.

Gallion Plays Shelby
The Gallion Orangemen, picked by most writers to provide the toughest obstacle in the way of Shelby to another title will get a chance to demonstrate its real strength tonight as the Whippets invade the Gallion Junior High gym for the opening league fray.

This game should be the best played and possibly the least fought of any on the schedule. Both have played impressive ball in pre-season competition, defeating nearly all of the non-league opponents encountered to date.

Bucyrus and Ashland, possible dark horses in the titular chase, will clash in the third game of the opening night play. The Redmen will be hosts of the Stars coached five for the mele. These teams have shown flashes of form during early season play which might upset the championship hope of the league. However, although these two will probably fight it out for a position of high standing neither seems strong enough to do more than threaten for the title.

A revamped Harding lineup will face Mansfield in the opening game for the Presidents and Tygers. Neither team has shown anything more than average ability in pre-season competition and Bucyrus has been experimenting with several Harding combinations in an effort to find one with sufficient scoring punch.

The starting lineup for the locals will probably be composed of Merkel and Morgan at forward, Line at center and Smith and Clay at guard. Unless this combination comes through with some scoring power and defensive ability whole-sale substituting will be in order, according to an announcement issued by Bucyrus.

Just what lineup will take the floor for Mansfield is not known yet. In former games this year Coach E. R. Murphy has been using a combination made up for the most part of sophomores. He will probably start the second year men against Harding.

A preliminary game to the Harding-Mansfield contest will be played starting at 7:30 between Mansfield and Harding Vocationalists.

TO OPEN PRO CAREER

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—Big Bill Tilden will begin his career as a professional tennis player in a match in Madison Square garden, Feb. 18, against Karel Kozeluh, crack Czechoslovakian player and world's professional champion.

SPORTS

SOME idea may be gained to-night as to whether Harding High school is going to accomplish anything in the N. C. O. basketball race or whether it is going to continue as the virtual doormat of the circuit. While it will not be possible tonight to form any particularly accurate opinion as to exactly where the team will finish the season nevertheless, if Harding is going to have anything like a strong team, they will show some signs of it.

Mansfield is bringing a team here that is not exceptionally strong. However, I refuse to believe it is as weak as it has been pictured to date by accounts written concerning it. It would not be at all surprising to see the Tiger display some of those fighting qualities for which they are noted and come through the season in a creditable manner. They will not win any championships but they make things quite uncomfortable for the top notches.

Coach Bohyer, in naming the probable starting lineup for the game tonight let it be known in no uncertain manner that the President players who start the game cannot be classed as first stringers. None of them are sure of their jobs. Should any of them for any reason feel that their job is definitely clinched, regardless of performance they are due for a decided jolt. Produce, or get out of the game and let some one else play that can, seems to be Bohyer's motto this season.

The Presidents worked long and hard during the vacation period in an effort to develop into some sort of a formidable combination. Whether or not they have accomplished their end cannot be known until the team has been subjected to the attack of league competition. I hope they have. Tonight's game won't be enough competition on which to say whether or not Harding is going to have a successful year but it will go a long way towards it.

There is no better time than the first game to start boosting the basketball team. That goes for both students of Harding High school and non scholastic followers of the Red and Black. The backing at the Harding-Delaware game recently was better than any demonstrated for some time by the team followers. There is no reason why it shouldn't increase as the Presidents swing into competition for the championship. The undivided backing of the student body will go a long way to instill fight in the court warriors. The Star auditorium should be packed to overflowing tonight. If it isn't Harding, students need to be taught something besides the usual educational courses.

Shovel Y-Indus Five Adds Ninth Victory to String

The Shovel Y-Indus club basketball team launched the New Year in a highly satisfactory fashion last night by traveling to Middletown to defeat the downstate Y aggregation 37 to 26. The victory runs the Y-Indus win total for the season to date to nine.

Middletown played on fairly even terms with the losers during the first and second periods, the count at the half standing 24-23 for the winners. Oglesby kept the downstatesters in the game with his snapping floor work and clever passing ability. He gathered in three field goals and added a free throw to give him seven points for the game. Bud Cram, ordinarily a guard for the Y-Indus team was shifted to forward last night to fill the place of the absent Roush and what he accomplished there is the best answer to whether or not the shift was satisfactory. He and Vic Gillis combined to score two points more than enough to beat the Middletown outfit. Each chalked up five field goals and four charity tosses, for 14 markers each.

Walter Lockwood and Bill Fetter contributed three field goals to the Y-Indus total and Bill Keller added another. Lockwood's work at center was above the average and Fetter looked good as forward while he was in the game.

Saturday night the local team will make another sally into foreign territory when it engages the Ashland college crew on the Ashland court.

The lineups and summary:
Y-Indus: G. F. Middletown G. F. Gillis, f. 5 4 Hayes 0 0 Cram, f. 5 4 Lantz 4 3 Lockwood, c. 1 1 Oglesby 3 2 Keller, g. 0 1 Ledford 0 1 Osterholt, g. 0 1 Brinkmeyer 0 1 Fetter, f. 2 0 Reid 1 1 Schneider 0 0 Lickel 0 0

Big Ten Quintets Defeat Intersectional Rivals

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Jan. 2—The Big Ten conference continued its basketball comeback in the intersectional free-for-all of practice games by taking three decisions last night. Greatest honors went to Indiana in its 27 to 19 victory over Pittsburgh on the Panthers' own floor. The Hoosiers are undefeated so far this season. Purdue, champion of the Western conference, had no difficulty in defeating Temple university last night. Illinois, a title threat in the conference this year, barely whipped Little Bradley college in Peoria, Ill., 18 to 17. Cornell university defeated Ohio University in Athens, 38 to 33. Brigham Young university of Provo, Utah, lost to Wittenberg college in Springfield, O., 45 to 36.

St. Mary Basketeers to Clash With Alumni Saturday

IRISH GRADS HAVE FORMER LUMINARIES IN LINEUP FOR GAME

Fye, Gorsuch, Kelly, Moran of Last Year's Five To Play.

Turning from interscholastic competition for the present, St. Mary's High school cagers will try conclusions Saturday night with a team composed of former athletic satellites of the school. The game will be played on the court of The Star auditorium.

Bob Kelly, forward of the crack 1929-30 Irish five has gathered together quite an array of material for the annual clash between the scholastic cagers and alumni organization. On paper the graduates look too tough for the high school five.

"Chuck" Fye, a dependable back guard of the 1929-30 Irish team will be back in uniform for the game. Fye will probably be at his regular position.

Starting Five Unnamed
Kelly has not named the starting lineup for the game but has on the role of eligible players such men as H. Tobin, Vernor Gorsuch, "Bugs" Moran, "Bill" Shea, Cliff Hogan, Ray Navin, Gene Gunder and John McNamara.

Tobin paired with Fye last season at the Irish guard posts. Gorsuch, a center, was another of the mainstays of the 1929-30 team. He was high scorer for the season and played a major part in the success of the team. "Bugs" Moran was a forward of last year's combination.

Navin in Lineup
Digging back lightly farther into the history of the Irish, the records reveal that Cliff Hogan played with the parochial outfit of '28, Ray Navin in '28, John McNamara in '26, and "Bill" Shea in '25. Gunder closed his high school career in 1929 and Kelly in 1930.

Navin, since deserting St. Mary for the University of Detroit has earned a varsity football award at that institution and has competed in varsity basketball. Gene Gunder has taken part in several branches of athletics at Notre Dame university. The manager of the Alumni team is a student at the University of Dayton.

Rev. Father Kreige, coach of the Irish High school five will probably send his regular team into action against the graduate team.

'BAMA TIDAL WAVE ENGULFS WASHINGTON STATE TEAM 24-0

MY PAUL ZIMMERMAN
By The Associated Press
PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 2—Southern football stood at a new high water mark today, swept there by Alabama's tidal wave which yesterday swamped Washington State 24 to 0.

One large quarter, featured by three brilliant plays, and the Crimson Tide surged to a record of two victories and a tie for the last six years of the Rose tournament flax-ta's sixteen year old classic here.

The triumph left the south with three wins and no defeats, while in the previous ten years the east and southwest managed to pull out with one victory apiece against Pacific coast opponents.

Alabama's tide broke loose in the second period and with a couple of long passes and a 41-yard run burst through the dike of the Cougar defense with apparent ease, for three touchdowns and a game.

The contest had moved along at a standoff in the first fifteen minutes. Coach Wallace had scorned Washington State's chances by starting his second team.

The scoring started with a reverse which pulled Jimmy Moore from end. He faded deep into his own territory with the ball, and heaved a long pass to John "Flash" Suther, yards over the heads of the Cougar's secondary defense.

The 70,000 who braved the drizzling rain were startled again a few minutes later when Moore duplicated the toss to Ben Smith his fellow end for a 20-yard gain which put the ball on the 1-yard line. An intercepted pass had put the Tide in a strategic position. Smith leaped high over two defenders' heads to nab the oval. John Campbell scored.

Campbell's quarterback play was spectacular. He climaxed the score ing splurge the fourth time he took the ball after the second touchdown by sifting through right tackle, to sweep unscathed down the sidelines on a 42-yard touchdown canter for the third time, his goal from placement was perfectly executed.

Coach Orin "Babe" Hollingbery's forces rallied with the third quarter but even then, "Ears" Whitworth was able to add three more points by kicking a field goal from placement after the Tide had been stemmed on the 23-yard line.

Fighting a losing game to the end, the Cougars launched a belated passing attack in the dying moments with George Sander, sophomore halfback, on the throwing end of three successful tosses which took the ball to the 4-yard line. Captain Elmer Schwartz was stopped for no gain on the first play, but on the second he reached the 2-yard line, only to fumble.

STOCK MARKET FUTURE BRIGHT

New Year Trading Starts
Soberly, but Hopefully;
Call Rate Drops.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The financial markets began the new year soberly, but hopefully. The stock market developed quietness after a selling flurry during the early trading, and bonds reacted to the new year by a slight advance. The call rate was presumably in part taking on the upturn in the last two sessions of 1931. Profit taking deferred until today will not be repeated until 1932.

Gold and motor shares reacted toward early midday. An advance in development in the early trading was a flop back in some of the times which were hurried late in the afternoon. Shares selling up a Wednesday, two included Atchison, New York Central, New Haven, Illinois Central, General Motors, Southern Railway, and Standard Oil of New York and New Jersey. Morning losses of a point or two in U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Bethlehem Steel, and Air Reduction were replaced by advances of like extent. American Water Works and American Power & Light lost 5 points in the early hour, or most of Wednesday's advance. Allied Chemical tumbled 5 to a low since 1928, then recovered.

The rise was facilitated by an unexpectedly quick break of the year's credit firmness. Call money renewed at 3 per cent, but dropped later to 1½, the lowest since September. Reduction of the discount rate of the Bank of France from 2½ to 2 per cent, placing it on a par with the New York rate, was viewed as constructive. With the Paris rate a full 1½ per cent lower than London, the drain on London's gold stock would be lessened.

The rail shares were helped by the knowledge that heads of the eastern trunklines had promptly resumed conferences to work out the details of the four-party unification plan. Although Wall Street understands that tangible developments in consolidation may be delayed some months, it is believed that the eventual consummation will result in the expenditure of $200,000,000 or more in deferred improvements.

Oils were braced by developments leading to the hope that the slump in gasoline prices may be ended. Standard of New Jersey announced an increase in tank car rates of 7 cents a gallon, f. o. b. Atlantic seaboard. This increase amounts to 1½ cent at Bayonne, N. J., and 1½ at Baltimore.

Farther in the week, Sinclair announced an increase in tank wagon rates of 1½ cent.

The motor shares responded to announcement of new models and price although prices are lower in most cases. Reductions have been made in the hope of stimulating sales. While estimates of 1931 production to around 4,000,000 units, against 3,500,000 in 1930, and 5,000,000 in 1932, makers have made price reductions in the large overhead cars which developed during the peak year of 1929.

Today in Marion Markets Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

The only change in the complex of Marion retail markets this morning was made by the arrival of rutabagas from northern Michigan and Canada. The price is five cents a pound. They are popularly prepared for serving in the same manner as turnips.

Butter prices continue to cover a wide range this morning, with grocers quoting prices of 35 to 39 cents a pound. The market has not yet fully recovered from an unusual condition resulting from an oversupply.

Egg prices are unchanged.

WHEAT PRICES TEND UPWARD

Unexpected Higher Liverpool Quotations Brings Upturn in Values.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—Wheat tended upward and corn downward early today. Unexpected higher Liverpool quotations and reports of further delay to the Australian harvest influenced wheat. Friends of higher prices contended the new year began with all bearish factors regarding wheat more than discounted. Opening wheat unchanged to 1¢ higher, wheat afterward held steady. Corn started 1/4¢ off to 1/2¢ up, and subsequently underwent an all around sag.

In the absence of aggressive speculative demand, wheat upturns were confined mostly to small fractions. Acting as an obstacle to pronounced gains was dearth of export call for North American wheat. There was also talk that low prices for wheat were not reflected by lower cost of bread, and that consequently wheat growers the world over were finding no increased consumer use of their product.

Despite curtailed receipts, corn ran into selling on price bulges. Corn arrivals at primary centers totaled 779,000 bushels against 1,181,000 a week ago, and 1,284,000 at this time last year. Chicago receipts were of similar volume, 114 cars, and 188 on the corresponding day of 1930. Oats followed corn. Provisions were easy, responsive to action of feed grain.

STOP FIGURES

Suspend Publication of Daily Bank Clearings Total to Check Gambling.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The new ruling of the New York Clearing House Association abolishing publication of daily clearing house figures became effective today. Hereafter on the regular weekly statement will be published. The action to abolish publication of the daily figure was taken largely to abolish gambling schemes that had sprung up in many sections, based on the published figures. Since establishment of the Federal Reserve system, the figures had lost much of their barometric significance.

COMMISSION TO GET NEW FOUR-LINE PLAN

Inter-State Groups Believed To Favor Latest Railroad System Proposal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The four-system eastern railroad consolidation plan was expected to be presented for approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission within a few days after the meeting in New York today to ratify the agreement.

While some opposition already is apparent in congress, it was pointed out that the final decision in approving or denying the proposed consolidation rests with the commission. Unofficial reports indicate that railroad men believe at least six of the 11 members of this independent group favor the general outline of the merger plan.

The New York meeting of ratification was among executives of the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central and Chesapeake & Ohio-Nickel Plate. It was necessary to draft the final application for submission to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which is expected to receive the formal request early next week.

Senator Couzens, Republican of Michigan, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, has been the most outspoken of congressional opponents of the plan. He opened his attack soon after President Hoover announced approval of the consolidation. Couzens, however, has not indicated definitely whether or not he intends to press an investigation of the railroad plan.

By The Associated Press
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 2.—A street car, carrying a trailer, jumped the tracks and crashed through the front wall of a three-story brick building in "the strip" early today. The motorman, A. Foley, extricated from the twisted wreckage of his car, was reported critically hurt. Two women and two children, who were asleep on one of the upper floors of the building, also were removed to a hospital. Police reported half a dozen other persons were slightly injured.

RETURN TO SHIPS

Local Sailors Resume Service After Christmas Vacations.

William Henry Byers, shipfitter second class, and Albert Elvis Trotter, fireman third class, U. S. Navy, left Marion yesterday to return to their ships after Christmas vacation with their relatives and friends. Byers is attached to the U. S. S. Northampton, flagship of the cruisers squadron, at Boston, and Trotter is attached to the U. S. S. Augusta, one of the latest of the new treaty cruisers, at Philadelphia.

Byers is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry O. Byers of 151 Franconia avenue, and just recently completed his first enlistment in the navy, being discharged from the U. S. S. Hatfield at Philadelphia. He re-enlisted on Dec. 20. Trotter is the brother of Mrs. Lynn E. Waggy of 149 Fairhaven avenue. He enlisted at Marion on March 8, 1930, and has been serving on board the U. S. S. Lawrence. He was transferred to the U. S. S. Augusta and was granted 18 days leave in reporting.

LEGGE READY FOR INQUIRY

Asserts Farm Board Will Welcome Investigation of Its Activities.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Chairman Alexander Legge of the federal farm board today promised his fullest cooperation in any special investigation congressional committees might wish to make of the board and its marketing activities. Legge at the same time said "we would be sorry to see the administration of the agricultural marketing act drawn into partisan politics," and indicated he wishes an end to the "exchange of personalities" between himself and John A. Simpson, president of the Farmers' Education and Cooperative Union. Legge said there would be no deviation from the board's present policies.

Answer to Simpson

Legge's statements were in a letter to Simpson, replying to the latter's charges that the board was attempting to depress wheat and cotton prices. The farm board chairman and Simpson have been engaging in a long distance controversy over testimony given by Legge at an executive session of a senate committee. Legge, in his latest letter said he wanted to repeat "most emphatically that the statements you have been using as having been made by me at this hearing are absolutely untrue."

"Entirely aside from anything which happened at this meeting," Legge wrote, "isn't it rather absurd to accuse us of trying to depress the price of wheat at a time when the domestic markets are 25 to 35 cents a bushel, depending on where the wheat might be located, above what it would bring if exported today, the Liverpool price averaging at present approximately 20 cents a bushel under the Chicago figures for the same grade of wheat?"

Alignment With Foes

"Don't you realize that in taking this position you are aligning yourself with the interests which are so bitterly opposing all efforts to aid agriculture in an effective way?"

Referring to reports that a resolution asking an investigation of the board's marketing activities would be introduced in congress, Legge said the board had nothing to conceal and had tried to cooperate with congress committees in furnishing desired information.

Police Continue Search for Bad Money Artists

Police are continuing a search for two women and a man who early this week figured in a scheme of passing counterfeit half-dollars here. Two filling station proprietors have been victimized for small amounts.

The trio passed the worthless coins at the Longacre filling station on North Main street and the Drilling station at West Center and Garden streets, according to information given police.

The half dollars are made of a shiny metal slightly resembling the genuine coin, but are easily detectable.

Flashes of Life

WASHINGTON—Chairman Alexander Legge of the farm board, who goes to social affairs seldom, knows Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth now. The Stars Say—

For Saturday, Jan. 3

THIS day's plan of stellar activities will be one of routine matters, with but little interest or inspire. Its pleasurable progress depends upon one's own inclination to force matters of necessary accomplishment. Nevertheless, the monotony should not encourage indulgence in the astral proclivity to irritability and vexatious conduct in small affairs.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which their own initiative and constructive ability may be put to the test, as the planets give but little incentive to progress or achievement. However, there may be a slight tendency to rash, impulsive and quarrelsome behavior, which should be suppressed. A child born on this day may be of rather negative tendencies, disposed to take "the easiest way," but disposed to be vexatious and irritable if crossed. It may lean toward mechanical employment.

EXPERT QUIZZED

Seek To Tear Down Testimony of Gun Witness in Ohio Murder Trial.

By The Associated Press
HILLSBORO, O., Jan. 2.—Attempts to tear down the testimony of Col. Calvin Goddard, Chicago ballistic expert, were continued by the defense today in the first degree murder trial of Willard Brucks, 25, of Hamilton.

Col. Goddard was cross-examined on his statements that the bullet which killed William Hughes, a Hillsboro policeman, was fired from a gun owned by Brucks. He said, however, that the science of ballistics is not infallible because of the possibility of human error.

Brucks contends he was at the home in Hamilton at the time Hughes met death in a gun fight with burglars.

SOME NEWS STORIES OF 1930 DUE FOR REGISTER IN HISTORY'S PAGES

Year's "Extra Final" Reviews Pageant of Leading Events.

EDITOR'S NOTE: What were the news stories that appealed most to the average American reader in 1930? Charles E. Honce, Executive News Editor of The Associated Press, in the following story recounts some of the year's outstanding news "breaks."

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—There is a saying that nothing is deadlier than yesterday's newspaper.

The big stories of yesterday are forgotten as the latest murder and rioting headlines spread their screaming headlines across the nation's newspaper.

But all these important things of yesterday live in some manner—in record books, in newspaper morgues, eventually in history.

Take the case of Bobby Jones for instance. He is the latest major golf honors this year, and then, with no further words to conquer, abdicated and decided to go into the movies so his millions of followers might see how he did it.

There really are six stories revolving around one personality, and those six stories will be enshrined in the records of sport.

In movies they use the flash back. Let's flash the scene 25 years ahead and find out what Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr. is doing.

Will he be a great aviator or pilot?

DISTRICT BRIEFS

GALLON.—Mrs. Anna Johnson, who has been critically ill at the Good Samaritan hospital, is improving. Mrs. Johnson has been a patient for over a year.

KENTON.—Two Hardin county people were elected to office in the Ohio Education association. They were Helen Reyer of Alger, member of the education council, and W. Thomas of Forest, president of the rural education division.

WYANDOT.—Born to Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Harris, one mile south of Wyandot, a daughter Thursday morning.

DELAWARE.—Charles H. Peters, 33, died on the way to a hospital here from poison taken as he told the entrance of the new year. A love affair was blamed.

MARYSVILLE.—A Community Chest is being planned here to aid in relief work. Local organizations are drawing up plans to raise a $5,000 fund.

BUCKYRUS.—Donald C. Gas has been appointed manager of the branch office of the Colonial Finance Co. of Lima which opened here today.

CLAIMED IN WEST

Former Resident of Bucyrus Dies. Word Says.

BUCKYRUS, Jan. 2.—Word has been received here of the death at Rakersfield, Calif., of Mrs. Fred Krauter, sister of Mrs. Adam Greenich, former Bucyrus resident, which occurred Monday.

Mrs. Krauter moved west seven years ago. Besides her husband she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Charles Martin of Ironton and Mrs. Herbert Portman of Arvin, Calif., and two sisters, Mrs. Greenich and Mrs. George Ortwein of Gallon.

468 AUTOS SOLD

116 Marriage Licenses Issued in Wyandot County in 1930.

UPPER SANDUSKY, Jan. 2.—Four hundred and sixty-eight new cars were sold in Wyandot county in 1930 according to the bill of sales record of Clerk of Courts E. J. Ulrich.

One hundred and ten marriage licenses were issued and 13 divorces granted.

Twenty-three fire calls were answered during the year. Of this number, six of the calls were made by the Crane township fire truck. Seventeen calls were made in this city.

Claims Horses Injured, Sues Penny for $967

BUCKYRUS, Jan. 2.—Judgment of $967 is sought in an action filed in common pleas court today by Elmer J. Friedlander against the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. charging that several horses shipped to him from South Dakota were injured causing him to sue the plaintiff in the amount sought.

That prospective career is one reason why the birth of Lindbergh, Jr., in 1930 was an outstanding news event.

Remote Planet Found
American astronomers in Flagstaff, Ariz., crowning years of sky-search, discovered this year an outer, remote planet, which was promptly named Pluto, and that event will live forever in astronomical annals.

Birth and life and death—three mysteries and three sources of news. We've already recorded a birth. On the 1930 scroll is recorded the death of William Howard Taft, who once was president, but who achieved the height of his ambition as Chief Justice of the United States.

News is the strangest thing in the world. No fiction can approach, noting aeronautics like his father?

England Astonished at Proposed Flight
The prospect of a flight from London to New York by a single-engine plane has caused much astonishment in England.

Miss Amy Johnson starts difficult air trip over barren ice fields.

By The Associated Press
LONDON, Jan. 2.—General astonishment has been aroused in Great Britain by departure of Miss Amy Johnson, 33-year-old aviatrix on a long lone flight across snow-covered northern Eurasia to Peking, China.

Leaving Hendon airfield yesterday forenoon, she stopped at Lymington and proceeded to Liege, Belgium, for the night. She expects to continue to Berlin, then to Moscow, where equipping her plane with skills she will fly across barren Siberia and Mongolia to Peking.

In addition to general fear for her safety in view of the extreme hazards of such a journey her friends were represented today as feeling considerable anxiety on account of her health.

The Daily Express said she was in ill health and had become a neurotic from the strain of her flight to Australia. The paper quoted an airman friend, George Campkin, as saying she had never recovered from the Australian ordeal, and is overstrung, irritable, depressed and restless, and does not realize what a winter flight over the sub-arctic snowfields involves.

The Soviet embassy at London told the Daily Herald that such a flight as she contemplated would be difficult and that she must be prepared for intense cold with the ground perhaps several feet deep in snow.

Schuler, who Thursday started upon his eighth year as mayor of Buckyrus, that he will be a candidate for mayor for a fifth term, subject to the primaries next August. That he will have opposition from two Democratic candidates was indicated today by H. O. Sharp, who retired as county recorder Monday, who has announced his candidacy and by George Birk, local druggist, who is expected to announce his candidacy within a short time.

ONE DIVORCE GRANTED
BUCKYRUS, Jan. 2.—Common Pleas Judge J. Walter Wright today granted one divorce decree and refused another. Grace Pierce of Gallon was granted a decree from Louis H. Pierce, Mrs. Ethel Ewing, Bucyrus, was denied a decree from Ernie Ewing.

FORMER MARION MAN DIRECTOR OF FIRM

Article Concerning G. T. Emerson Appears in London Trade Magazine.

An interesting review of the journalistic activities of George T. Emerson, Jr., of London, son of Mr. Emerson, G. T. Emerson of 235 West Center street, and who recently was made a director of the London Advertising, Ltd., was carried in a recent issue of The London Press News, English news and advertising magazine.

Mr. Emerson's first experiences in newspaper work were gained while he was a "cub" reporter on The Marion Star, the article relates. He subsequently became bureau manager, night editor, and staff correspondent with the Associated Press of America in New York and other American cities.

He resumed newspaper work after a discharge from the American Army in France in 1919, joining the Associated Press in Paris where he assisted to cover the last weeks of the peace conference. Later that year he was transferred to London.

After spending five years as correspondent for the Associated Press, the Philadelphia Public Ledger and the New York Herald Tribune, he entered the advertising department of newspaper work as a copywriter with Lever Brothers.

He was manager of the ideas and copy department of the Lever House Advertising Service from July to February last year, when he joined the company of which he recently was made a director.

LAST NIGHT at the THEATERS

"Charley's Aunt"

Shows at Palace

CHARLES RUGGLES and "Charley's Aunt" fit rather closely together. The picture had its opening last night, although previews of the picture were shown on New Year's eve. The story is still funny, although not as funny as it was on the stage.

Ruggles manages to change his identity from that of a young English lord to that of an old woman of Spanish aristocracy. The picture was first a stage show in the '80s in England. In that country there is a "Charley's Aunt Club" of all the actors who have ever played the comedy role and there is also a stipulation in contracts signed for its production that the leading character must wear a "Charley's Aunt" costume of the same design as that worn by the first actor to portray the role.

It's all about three college boys in love. Ruggles agrees rather against his better judgment to masquerade as the aunt of one of the boys and gain the consent of the girls' guardian for their marriage. His own girl appears with the real aunt, who keeps her identity secret until the picture closes. Ruggles' situations with two doughty old men who wish to propose marriage are bound to tickle your funny bone.

Regal Spenser played one old song, "Smiles," that everyone could and did sing, and the program was completed with a news reel and dog comedy.

open a similar store in the room on South Main street formerly occupied by the Thom McAn Shoe company. She has taken a lease on the South Main street room.

Miss McCausland announces that she has purchased complete new equipment and furnishings for the new store, which will be opened about Feb. 1. Remodelling of the room and installation of a new modern front will get under way soon.

Daily Proverb—"What is the use of running when we are not on the right road?"

New York state is considering the plan of taxing cigars, ice-cream sodas and other soft drinks. Let's see! Has New York a tax on lip sticks and rouge?

Robert Littell says that "among brain workers there is a tendency to reach for a 'Lucky' instead of a thought." Anyway, we know that Robert reads the advertisements.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company and its employees have arbitrated 1,634 major cases affecting train and engine employees during the last ten years, all of which have been adjusted amicably. That's a heap slight better than either strikes or nursed ill-feeling.

The census bureau has disclosed that over $2,000,000,000 were spent in the retail stores of Chicago during the year, 1929. Over this way we would consider this a pretty fair year's commercial business.

Three other Republicans are opposing William Hale Thompson for the Chicago mayoralty nomination. Seemingly the good people of the Windy City do not appreciate the fact that, the greater the number of the candidates, the surer "Big Bill" will be to carry off the bacon.

A church organization in Pollock, Virginia, voluntarily paid an attorney $1,000 for legal services rendered the church by him, and a few hours later fined him $1,000, under an ancient blue law of the state, for non-attendance at church. The vestrymen of that church must have some Scotch blood in them.

Dr. Leland E. Hinkle, professor of criminal psychiatry at Columbia university, says a little imp gets into our minds and causes us to commit such irrational acts as falling in love. Believe us, Doc, that little imp must keep himself mighty busy.

"Big Bill" Tilden played a mean, low-down trick on the United States Lawn Tennis association by resigning his amateur status to go into the movies. Now it can no longer mystify the sporting world by its decisions in alternating his amateur and professional standings.

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, replying to the charge of Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, that the secretary franked his personal Christmas cards, denies that he did anything of the kind and states that the only Christmas cards franked by him were a limited number of official cards of the department of agriculture, and, continuing, says: "Additional proof of the fact that they are official and not personal can be adduced from the fact that Senator Caraway received one." Which, it may be said, is our idea of a sizzling retort.

Uncle Sam's Trick Island.
 That volcanic island off the coast of Java is not the only one regarding which the conjurer's words, "Now you see it, and now you don't," may be used. Uncle Sam has a disappearing island of his own. It's more than that. Sometimes, in doing its shimmy, it is one island and again it is twins.

This freak possession of the United States is in Behring sea just off and almost at the southwest end of the Alaskan peninsula. Its name is Bogoslof, a reminder of the one-time ownership of Alaska by Russia.

Bogoslof first attracted popular attention in 1906, at which time it was cutting up all kinds of capers, changing its shape and appearance from month to month. At that time the sea about it was so hot that vessels feared to approach closer to it than five or six miles.

Four years later, in 1910, it entirely disappeared, to reappear a few months later as two islands. It remained fairly quiet for fifteen years, but in 1925 skippers of vessels sailing the far northern waters reported that one of the twins had disappeared. Later in the year, however, the Bear, of the United States coast guard service, investigated and found that the island had simply risen much higher than previously, sufficiently high to explain one mystery in connection with it.

Previously it had appeared either as one island or as two, but in 1925 it had risen sufficiently high to show that it was one island with two peaks of different heights. At certain heights above the sea but one peak and the land surrounding it showed, but as the island went higher, both peaks showed.

Today its behavior is fairly good. It stands above the sea with much the appearance of the back of a Bactrian camel with its familiar two humps. The island has cooled off amazingly and is so much cooler today than it was as late as last summer that it is being inhabited by millions of birds and thousands of sea lions.

Some days ago we spoke of the fact that this old earth of ours has not yet emerged from its formative period. In Bogoslof island we have added evidence of this fact.

Building and Loan Birthday.

One hundred years ago tomorrow, Saturday, January 2, the first building and loan association in the United States was organized in Frankford, Pennsylvania. From that beginning, the idea has grown until there are, at present, more than 12,000 building and loan associations in the country—more than eleven times as many as there are bona fide savings banks. The depositors in building and loan associations number more than 12,000,000. There are only a few less depositors than there are in all the nation's savings banks.

The movement has had its greatest development in Pennsylvania, Ohio and New Jersey, which together account for almost one-half of all the building and loan association members, and of all assets as well. The total assets, representing only slightly less than the deposits and other resources of the nation's savings banks, are close to $2,000,000,000.

The United States Building and Loan league estimates that approximately half a million people acquire homes every year through loans from building and loan associations. From the same source it is learned that approximately 3,000,000 homes have been financed through the associations in their century of existence.

In 1929, a year when savings deposits in all banks in the United States were decreased by $195,000,000, building and loan associations increased their assets by approximately $600,000,000. While the 1930 figures are not available, reports from certain states indicate that the increase in building and loan assets has continued to increase, although not nearly so rapidly as new demands for loans. The department of commerce estimates that in 1929 the total mortgage loans from the associations amounted to $1,850,000,000.

Divorce in the District of Columbia has more than doubled during the last ten years, divorces having been granted to 1,808 men and 2,462 women in the district against 884 granted to men and 1,361 to women ten years ago. Well, the national capital is not unlike the remainder of the country in this respect, unless it be that it is somewhat more conservative. We are living in a mighty fast age and changing our points of view rapidly.

50,000 More Every Day.

Statisticians of the League of Nations have figured out that the population of the earth is daily enriched by 50,000 new lives. In other words, 150,000 people are being born every day, while only 100,000 are dying each day. It is a net increase of 50,000 people every minute of the twenty-four hours.

Automatically, the eternal question, "How many inhabitants can the earth support?" is called up by the information. Particularly in the United States, preparing to bar its doors to further immigration, is the question likely to be asked. The answer is as vague as ever; it would be so were the rate of increase to be 150,000 a day.

Centuries ago thinking men speculated on the possibility that the race would perish if it increased too rapidly. Malthus, an English political economist, propounded the theory that food supplies would serve as a check on population, always preventing it from becoming much larger, but as yet time has failed to prove the theory. Curiously, at the moment when science is exerting its knowledge to prolong the span of human life and decrease the death rate, the greatest anxiety is caused by over-production of necessities, not under-production. The problem is one of distribution. Every productive area is capable of furnishing more food than market demand makes profitable.

The finding of the League of Nations statisticians calls attention also to the rapid development of continents hitherto given only passing consideration in the world's commercial and industrial affairs. Europe and Asia support eighty per cent. of the world's population, North and South America have approximately 9.85 per cent., and the remainder is in Africa and Australia. Such figures and the considerations of future growth they provoke should be sufficient to dispel any fear that the day when population will "hup" to the food supply is close at hand. There are vast possibilities in regions as yet hardly known by man.

Jack Guzik, the Chicago gangster second in power to Scarface Al Capone, has been sentenced by a federal court to five years and a day in Leavenworth prison and fined $17,500 on conviction of evading income taxes. That will hold one of Chicago's "public enemies" for a time, at least.

A Pittsburgh man claims that bathing in moonshine will give relief from rheumatism, but a lot of the whisky will be inclined to figure that the external application of whisky is nothing less than wilful waste.

Paillard's, one of the famous places of good eating in Paris, has closed its doors. What chance for existence has a place famous for its culinary art in an age when people go to restaurants to drink and be entertained by cheap and indifferent amusements?

A magazine writer names John H. Clarke, of Cleveland, a former justice of the United States supreme court, as the wisest and kindest man in Ohio. With all due respect to Mr. Clarke, we'll say that the writer is taking in a lot of territory.

"America has produced many dishes worthy of a place on the roll of culinary masterpieces," says the famous Ralph Ritz, "but never a great cook." Is the ability of our grandmothers to be traduced like this without nationwide rebuke?

The $250,000 slunder suit instituted against Mayor Walker, of New York City, by former City Marshal Jacob Cosh has been discontinued at the instance of the latter. The suit was brought as the result of the mayor's statement that he would not reapportion Cosh because in the records of the mayor's office there were twenty-nine charges against him and he was "guilty of the meanest kind of preying on poor people." It's a positive relief to have this light to make plain that the Tammany government of New York is not made up wholly of saints, as there has been an inclination to hold.

Editorial Opinion.

THE HIDDEN CITY OF THE ITZAE.

In outlining his plans for aerial exploration in Yucatan, Captain William F. Long expressed the hope of finding somewhere in the forests of the peninsula a city "still inhabited" with the mode of life therein "the same as it was six or seven hundred years ago."

No legend of the Mayan peninsula is more persistent and attractive than the story that in remote reaches of the region lies the "ancient and holy Chacnucvitan," maintained in pristine native glory and independence by Mayan—or Itzae—descendants of the original builders, who continue the rites of the old religion, and retain much of the old culture, including possibly some of the pre-Columbian books.

This yarn, we believe, was first given currency in the United States by John Lloyd Stephens, famous American traveler and savant, who went through Central America and Yucatan in the eighteen fifties, and subsequently wrote some rather notable accounts of his travels. Mr. Stephens told how an old native had related to him that his grandfather in his youth had viewed the mysterious city from a hill top. The story has since been rather indefinitely yarn for what it was worth, but it took hold, as stories regarding hidden races and cities always do, and at least two romances of some account, "The Silver City," by Frederick A. Ober, the historian, and "The Heart of the World," by Sir H. Rider Haggard, are results of the attraction it has had for writers.

Of course, even if there was an Itzae city in full flower 150 years ago, which is highly doubtful for reasons that will occur to any person familiar with the history of the fortunes and misfortunes of the Mayas, it does not follow that the place has withstood the wear and tear and blight of isolation since that time. It is not reasonable to suppose anything of the sort in view of the rather circumscribed area of the unknown region, and the absence of tangible evidence.

Yet there may be something that is a basis for the Stephens story and for all the subsequent similar stories that have filtered out of the wilderness. It is quite possible that somewhere in the shadows of forests which now have defied the trampling feet of the white man for more than 100 years, there may be half tumble down ruins which members of the Mayan race continue to occupy. It is far from incredible that the cult of Kukulkan survives in places where his serpent image and his altars persist undecorated. Even along the coast, and on the island of Cozumel, Dr. Spinden found temples with offerings a few years ago. Among millions of the Indians in Middle America, Christianity is a religion superimposed upon faith in the old gods, and on occasion it is quickly shed in their favor.

Even the discovery of the germ, so to speak, of the alluring legend of the hidden city of palaces, gold, silver, shining courts, trooping priests and priceless picture manuscripts, would be worth while. Though deserted and bare, though chiefly the haunt of the serpent, the tarantula and the quetzal, it still might prove the most notable archaeological find beyond Tehuantepec.—Detroit Free Press.

Four Zanes of Ohio History.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

A friendly reader of these little stories has called our attention to the fact that the story referring to the death of Zaneville and her schools still enjoy out of the estate of John McIntire, mentioned Jonathan Zane as the man who laid down the Zane line. This was incorrect, the reader points out—and he is right; it was Ebenezer Zane, Jonathan Zane, his brother, assisted in cutting the trace, as did also McIntire, who was Ebenezer Zane's son-in-law, having married Elizabeth Zane. But it was Ebenezer Zane, who, in 1796, was given authority by the government to establish the pioneer road and take choice lands at the river crossings as his compensation.

Four Zanes figure prominently in Ohio pioneer history. In addition to the two mentioned above, there was their sister, Betty Zane, who was the heroine of Fort Henry on the site of Wheeling, who left the fort while it was surrounded by Indians waiting to assault it, and procured from a nearby source of supply ammunition of which the garrison was sorely in need. This was on the Virginia side of the Ohio, of course, but near enough to the Ohio territory to be regarded as a part of its history.

Then there was Isaac Zane, who, captured in Virginia in his youth by the Indians, was held a captive by them for a number of years, finally settling as a pioneer in Logan county, near the present town of Zanesfield, to which he gave his name.

All the original Zanes were Virginia people, and it is interesting to note that all four of these pioneers bore scriptural names, Betty's Christian name, of course, being Elizabeth.

Right Food and Strong Teeth.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In our childhood we were told, and perhaps for a time believed that:

"Crusts will make your hair curl,
 Crusts will make you strong;
 Crusts will cure the stomachache,
 If eaten right along."

Some of the present-day claims of dietitians may seem just as extravagant and far-fetched, but fortunately for us, they have a more scientific basis than the conclusions of this old nursery rhyme. For example, every day more and more evidence is being accumulated to prove that good teeth depend almost wholly on proper diet.

For many years dentists and doctors, health and school officials, have laid great emphasis on the proper cleansing of the teeth. We have been taught how and when to brush the teeth and massage the gums, what kind of a brush to use, what paste or powder to put on it, why dental floss is necessary, what mouth-wash to employ. And we have been trained to make semi-annual trips to the dentist to have him repair the damage that has taken place.

Now we are being taught that, unless the diet is correct, all the physical care that can be given the teeth will not preserve them. But on the other hand, if the diet is correct, the dentist's examination will more often than not show that all is well.

Damage to the teeth comes primarily from within. The teeth fail to form properly or their substance breaks down because of a lack of the proper food elements to build them up and make them strong and resistant.

Tests have recently been conducted at the University of Chicago to discover the effect on the teeth of eating sugar. All of them were given an antiseptic mouth wash twice daily. Some were allowed their usual diet, while the others were put on one from which sugar was practically eliminated.

At the end of the period the teeth were examined. Two-thirds of those who had eaten sugar had developed cavities. In those who had not had sugar there was no evidence of decay.

Doubtless, it was not the sugar itself—a valuable food when properly used—that caused the decay. More likely it is because sweet food takes away the appetite for the foods necessary for tooth development.

Knowing these things, you will see why it is wise to eat sweets, especially in a concentrated form like candy, only at the end of a meal. When that is done, there is more likely to be a properly balanced diet, the essentials will be taken. Then the teeth will not suffer from a lack of the food elements they need.

What are these elements that take part in building the teeth? The most important ones are lime, phosphorus, and the substance known as vitamin D.

To secure these elements the diet should contain fresh fruits and vegetables, but, more important than anything else, it should contain an adequate amount of milk.

A quart of milk a day by itself would supply all the vitamin D needed by an adult. For babies and children it is the chief source of this important element, and should never be omitted from the diet.

Man's Origin and Survival.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Some time ago, that trenchant Irish critic, George Bernard Shaw, warned the world that unless the human race set about some real self-improvement, it was doomed to extinction. Throughout the course of life upon earth, many species have made the struggle for existence, survived for a time, and then gone under. Not only individual species, but vast groups of fauna have utterly vanished from the earth. Every dog has his day, is a familiar saying. And, in a sense, the same thing may be said of species. The giant reptiles, the dinosaur, the brontosaurus, the plesiosaur, the pterodactyl, the dodo—to mention only familiar examples, had their day and ceased to be.

Obscure causes, beyond the powers of modern science to divine, were responsible for the extinction of species. Was extinction a matter of accident or of design? Was the extinction of these species predictable in advance, or only realizable almost at the moment of extinction? Selection does not show such extinction to have been predictable. In that sense, then, extinction of species was an accident—since it is of the nature of the accidental, the accidental, to be unpredictable.

The evolutionists believe that man descended from some ape-like ancestor; and that the great apes today are man's blood-brothers, a different branch of the same ancestral tree. There was a moment, an epoch in history when the ape-like ancestor, changing from ape-like ancestor to man. When did this occur, and why? Science can not answer positively; but can only speculate intelligently, and in "solving" one problem leave many others as yet unsolved.

Perhaps man just happened! Perhaps his birth was an accident, and his survival the fortuitous result of the operations of chance. Man's ancestor was arboreal; and the use of tree-like limbs existed, exercised in an incalculably important influence upon his chances of survival. The exercise of hands and arms, the development of the "opposable thumb," have been described as fundamental factors in man's progress.

Furthermore, as Professor Elliot Smith has pretty well demonstrated, arboreal life resulted in a change in the position of the eyes, from the sides to the front of the face. Binocular vision and the consequent development of the frontal lobes of the brain, resulting from tree-living, exercised an important influence upon man's future development. The instinctive acts of the ape-like, arboreal ancestor of man gradually gave place to thoughtful acts, associated with the frontal lobes of the brain. The British scientist, H. S. Harrison, goes so far as to say that if there had been no trees there would have been no men!

At some unknown epoch in the past, our ancestors deserted the trees, descended to the ground, rose from all fours, and walked only on their hind legs. What were the peculiar conditions of environment, reinforced by evolution, which brought about this revolutionary change in the habits and characters of our ancestors?

The answer which Harrison gives is this: A fortuitous combination of fortunate circumstances, combined perhaps with some superior physical or mental powers, saved our own line from extinction, but we can no more explain why it happened than we can explain in general terms why some human families die out and titles become extinct, while others persist throughout centuries.

Man's "clever hands and large brain" enabled him to survive. This, says Harrison, was an accident more momentous than any other in the history of the human species.

This, however, is the view of a single scientist. It is probable that the majority of anthropologists and biologists are not arrayed on his side. It is nevertheless true that scientists are still widely divided regarding man's origin and survival: accident or design?

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—A congressional survey of unemployment and relief problems confronting the nation will be begun next Tuesday by the senate appropriations committee.
Colonel Arthur Woods, chairman of President Hoover's emergency committee for employment, and John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, will head the list of those to be questioned.
Upon their testimony is expected to hinge the decision of attempting any further relief steps. Senators LaFollette, Republican of Wisconsin,

President Hoover's emergency relief program has been enacted by congress and no additional legislation is now contemplated by administration leaders beyond the $40,000,000 appropriation for drought-stricken farmers which was authorized early in the session. However, the appropriations committee has been asked by the senate to inquire of Colonel Woods:

1. Any information in his possession relating to extent of unemployment.
2. Measures for relief of distress caused by unemployment in the various cities.
3. His recommendations concerning the extent to which public works must be expanded if a substantial reduction in unemployment during this year is to be brought about.

Industrial production figures, based on the Federal Reserve Board's index, showed business declined from 127 per cent of the 1923-1925 average in June 1929 to 95 per cent in December; advanced to 106 per cent in April 1930, turned downward in May and continued downward to 84 per cent in November. Interest rates have been unusually low and investments of banks have increased rapidly.
Business in the fourth federal reserve district in 1930 declined somewhat farther than in the entire country because of its highly industrialized makeup. No Increase Favored
President Hoover's emergency relief program has been enacted by congress and no additional legislation is now contemplated by administration leaders beyond the $40,000,000 appropriation for drought-stricken farmers which was authorized early in the session. However, the appropriations committee has been asked by the senate to inquire of Colonel Woods:

1. Any information in his possession relating to extent of unemployment.
2. Measures for relief of distress caused by unemployment in the various cities.
3. His recommendations concerning the extent to which public works must be expanded if a substantial reduction in unemployment during this year is to be brought about.

U. S. BANK REPORT MORE ENCOURAGING

December Survey Lists Business Developments Best in Many Months.
Industrial production figures, based on the Federal Reserve Board's index, showed business declined from 127 per cent of the 1923-1925 average in June 1929 to 95 per cent in December; advanced to 106 per cent in April 1930, turned downward in May and continued downward to 84 per cent in November. Interest rates have been unusually low and investments of banks have increased rapidly.
Business in the fourth federal reserve district in 1930 declined somewhat farther than in the entire country because of its highly industrialized makeup. With steel, automobile, tire and building operations recording most of the year, and with farm incomes substantially reduced by price declines and crop failures, individual buying has been sharply curtailed," the report said.

THE JAPANESE PRIME MINISTER, HAMAGUCHI, SERIOUSLY WOUNDED BY AN ASSASSIN'S BULLET, IS IMPROVING.

On the New Year, although very ill, he insisted on getting up to shave.
Then, dressed in his ceremonial kimono, standing in spite of his illness, he made a speech in the direction of the imperial palace, he made a deep bow as a sign of respect to the emperor.
Japan is modern in science, energy and efficiency, but old-fashioned in respect for tradition.

New Case of Honesty Breaks Out in City

A NEW case of honesty was being written into police records this morning.

Two transient "gentlemen of leisure" started the new year right when they turned over to a patrolman a pocketbook they found on the sidewalk here last night.

However, the case of honesty was found justifiable, for there was no money in the wallet.

The men were anxious to obtain a "floor" or lodging in city prison last night, and probably knew they would be searched before admitted, and that possession of the pocketbook would look suspicious. So before going to the station, they handed the wallet to an uptown patrolman, who discovered it belongs to Mrs. Ida Daum of 140 East George street.

The men gave their names as Jack Colly and Franklin Beck.

Foreign Government Rule Has Tempestuous Year

More Overthrown by Conflict or Threat of Force of Arms Than in Any Other 12-Month Period Since World War.

BY H. C. MONTEE
International News Service Director of Foreign Service

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The year 1930, in addition to being remembered as the year of the great financial-economic depression, will stand out in history as the year of the great depression in the prestige of government all over the world.

More governments were turned out of power by force of arms, threat of force or coups d'état during the 12-month just past than during any similar period since the close of the World War. Government stocks appear to have slumped mainly all over the world in almost an exact ratio to the monetary depression in economic and industrial stocks and the price of commodities.

Nine Overthrown
No fewer than nine governments were overthrown by coups d'état, force of arms or threat of force during the year; at least three governments were turned out of power by parliamentary action, and attempts were made by force of arms to remove five other governments. The majority of the governmental changes, even when accomplished by force of arms, for instance, were achieved with little or no bloodshed. Wholesale, spontaneous uprisings by the populace of a number of the countries so overthrown seem to have been the result of a regime in power no choice but abdicate, or carefully planned coups d'état so skillfully and swiftly executed as to catch the governing powers completely by surprise and unprepared to resist, obviated.

much possible fighting and bloodshed.

Some Are Costly

In a few cases the change in governments, or the attempts to change governments, were accompanied or preceded by sanguinary armed clashes or civil war in which many lives were lost.

The locale of the various subversive successes or attempts embraced Europe, Africa, Asia, and South America. The only world continents not touched were North America and Australia.

Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Haiti, Peru and the Dominican Republic, in the Latin American geographical sphere, underwent changes in government as a result of revolution, threat of revolution or coups d'état. Abyssinia, on the African continent, Roumania and Spain, in Europe, did likewise. Chile, Cuba, Ecuador, Uruguay and China experienced attempts by force of arms to overthrow their respective governments.

Austria, Belgium, Egypt and France effected changes in government by parliamentary methods. The unrest in India is not included in the above list because the agitation there, resulting in many sanguinary clashes and much bloodshed, did not have for its object the immediate overthrow of the government. In most of the countries where government overthrows were experienced political unrest was aggravated by economic distress or discontent. This was particularly true throughout Latin America where the flame of revolution spread through the swiftness of an unchecked prairie fire. The exceptions with Abyssinia and Roumania.

Aviation Moves Forward as Transportation Factor

BY OSCAR LEIDING
Associated Press Aviation Editor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—American aviation traded its circus spangles for overalls in 1930 and went to work.

It dug down to bedrock to rear a solid structure in place of the fragile framework that tottered under depression. Sound economics were substituted for high-pressure ballyhoo.

The spotlight turned from spectacular flights to practical air transportation. Aviation was content to let its work for the year be summed up in terms of what it had meant to the public in flying passengers, mail, and express.

Spurred by lowered fares, passenger traffic on scheduled lines grew so that during the first half of the year 34,982 more people were carried than in the entire year of 1929.

Three Lines Operating
Three great air systems spanning the nation with mail and passengers are already in operation. They are a southern route by American Airways between Atlanta and Los Angeles, a mid-continent route by Transcontinental-Western Air between New York and Los Angeles, and a northern route by Boeing and National air transport between New York and San Francisco. Foreign routes were extended with promise that an international hook-up will be arranged in 1931 to fly mail between America and Europe by way of Bermuda and the Azores.

In all there are now 120 American air transport routes, domestic and foreign, with 116,605 plane-miles scheduled to be flown daily compared with 59,436 plane-miles a year ago. A number of notable flights captured the public's imagination.
